THE SNOW CLAD HILLS OF MAINE
E. A. Blackwell, Mainstream, Great Moose Lake

Oh, I know the sun will rise in other places, And the branches beneath the snow will bend. But I love the Pine Tree State. The snow-clad hills of Maine are so beautiful. There are old stone walls and rail fences. That lead to my home close to Saco's frozen stream. And a deer's eye gleams in the snow. To protect the vine-clad hills of Maine. There are old familiar roads where the trees are bending low. But my longing eyes look in vain For the home where I was born. Among the snow-clad hills of Maine.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE 155

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter of each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words are in dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

WATERFORD

Waterford School Entertainment and Christmas Tree.

The closing exercises of the Waterford school, Mrs. Minnie Sanderson, teacher, were held Friday, Dec. 16. A fine program was presented by the Pine Tree League of the school which was greatly praised by all present. A Christmas tree was held after the entertainment, with presents for all the children and members of the school. This was followed by refreshments of cake and fruit, and a punch. In all, about fifty people were present. The program was as follows:

Interview With Thomas A. Edison

From Socony Standard Magazine

"Next to the World War, the automobile has done more to revolutionize American life than any other invention or agency," Thomas A. Edison declares in an interview by Hugo Weir in the Socony Standard.

"The great value of the automobile is not the fact that it has made it easier and quicker and cheaper to go to places but the fact that it has inspired several million people to go. It has caused them to move, to get themselves to get out and away, to wake up to what was going on about them. And any agency that would have moved some of them would be a public benefactor. Before the automobile it would have been looked at as a man seeing his left shoe."

Edison emphasizes the slogan, "See America. Buy the auto." He says there are more than that. It has made a good many hundred thousand Americans see themselves and their neighbors—for the first time. It has set their gray matter to work. It has howled at the petty and meaningless lives they were becoming.

Many years ago when the motion picture was in its infancy I conducted a series of tests with titles to ascertain the mental ability of my audience. The captions were held on the screen for varying lengths of time to determine how long it would require the spectators to read them—and how many could repeat them afterwards. The result showed us that most of the audience averaged an intelligence of not more than thirty-five percent of what they should have had. Often children scored far higher than adults.

"It is astonishing what an effort it seems to be for many people to put their brains definitely and systematically to work. They seem to insist on something else—often anybody else—doing their thinking for them," said the inventor shaking his head. "That is why I regard the general mental stimulus we have seen in recent years as so significant. Several industrial factors have been definitely responsible to mention only three of them, the motion pictures, the radio and the automobile. Let us look at the automobile."

"Most of us view the automobile principally as a great business and manufacturing achievement. It is—but it is a greater education for the people. It is in the beginning we were a pioneer people—a restless people. But when things came easier for us and we were able to make a comfortable living without much effort, we began to grow restless. The automobile is helping to restore it. And that is one of the most healthful signs of our generation. Restlessness is discontent—and discontent is the first necessity of progress. It is the first step toward a new life. I will show you a failure."

"We have long since passed the age of the pedestrian. But the mental advance of society as a whole has not kept pace with our physical advance. We have come to take the wonders of invention as a matter of course—as we do everything else. But those who call this a sophisticated age are wrong. It is a pernicious age. And it is so principally because the majority of people won't or can't think far enough to understand what it all means."

"Physically the world is moving faster than at any time since its creation and some of us may pause now and then to question our emphasis on physical speed, but if it served to stir up our sluggish intellect, which it must, it is necessary for more of us to think in order to live, it is worth while."

"The wheels of progress—especially those of the automobile—have worked results which would be miracles. But their greatest service has been to raise the thinking capacity of society. If there is one evil in the world today for which there is no excuse it is the evil of stupidity."

Canary Islands Prize of Many Adventurers

The Canary Islands have the distinction of being the most sought-after islands known to history. They were known to the ancients and named Canaria by Piny from "the multitude of large dogs that do there abound." Warren H. Miller relates in "All Around the Mediterranean." A French vessel was driven ashore there in 1384, and in 1400 Jean de Berthen courted from Rochelle to take possession, but the natives would have none of him, and he sold a bad bargain to a Spaniard. From then on these islands were sold and resold to various Spanish adventurers, all of whom had luck with the natives, until one, Paranza, finally sold them to the Spaniards. In 1476 a group of 1,000 Spanish soldiers set sail for the Canaries to reduce the islands to the glory of God, under Alonso de Lugo, who completed his task in 1495.

NORWAY—NORBLE'S CORNER

Young Stock Captured—Bad Colds Prevalent—Curries at Wrightstone.

Mrs. Elvessa Packard has returned home to Norway after a visit of several days with her brother, Guy Curtis, and wife.

Wayland Upton, with a crew of helpers, has finally succeeded in capturing the last of his, and his father's young stock, the past week.

Walter Thurston has finished hauling dry cordwood to G. A. Stephen's at Norway Lake on O. N. Cox. Owing to changes in weather, some was hauled with a truck. Keeps one guessing from one day to another as to what sort of an outfit to start out with.

Ray Raynor of Raymond and Elizabeth Walker of Mechanic Falls were dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. L. P. Symonds, Sunday.

Mrs. Symonds went to Norway, Monday, to visit a few days in the home of her friends, Mrs. Cora Seavey and Lois Buzzell.

Several around the Corner have been having bad colds which seem hard to get over. Maule Bennett has been nearly sick with one the past week though she has persisted in getting out every day and is feeling better.

Herbert Holt has just begun cutting his year's supply of wood down on Oscar Cox's wood lot.

Allan Fraser, nine years old, is the happy owner of a pair of new Dunham snow shoes. He has been saving his money all summer on purpose to have them made for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Curtis have returned to Wrightstone after several months at their home here. They are about to start their big incubator down there to running very soon. Mr. and Mrs. Witham will occupy the Curtis house, as Mr. Witham has been hired to work there for H. B. Wright.

A SPLENDID CHRISTMAS GIFT

THE NORWAY ADVERTISER

(OXFORD COUNTY, ME.)

If Cost is a Consideration, how can you possibly make your good wishes felt, throughout an entire year, for so trivial a sum?

If the Decision Turns on Sentiment, how will it be possible to keep alive your own memory better than by placing before your friend, week by week, the happenings of Oxford County, or of that part of it which is or has been your home and his?

If a Practical Gift is Sought, What could be of more actual value than week by week information of what is going on in Oxford County, that section in which has occurred and will occur more events of vital interest to you and your friends than all the world besides?

Every consideration makes the "Norway Advertiser" the gift among gifts, to anyone who lives or has ever resided in Oxford County.
